Expertise & Objectivity in a Turbulent Art Marketplace: A Forum for Collectors, a program organized collaboratively by the Art of Leadership art lecture series and the Appraisers Association of America, is a forum for art collectors and art world professionals to identify and discuss the vital issues facing collectors—those who have existing collections, and those who plan to acquire more art during these challenging economic times.

- What are the challenges of participating in the last unregulated marketplace?
- How can collectors navigate the intricacies of the marketplace while protecting themselves?
- What ARE the latest IRS regulations that affect collectors, and how will they impact on donations and charitable giving?
- In such volatile market conditions, how can one Mark to Market art to buy smartly?
- How can collectors ascertain that they are getting objective and independent advice when they go to buy, sell, donate, lend, gift, or insure their art?
